MORE ARRESTS ARE EXPECTED IN 4 MURDERS

Interest Is Still High As Investigation Goes on In Michigan

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Hold Killers at Jackson Awaiting Probe

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 15.—New arrests loomed today in the fiendish torch slaying of two high school boys and their girl companions as a result of Prosecutor Albert Rapp's interrogation of the trio of "sex slayers."

"We are far from the end of our work on this murder case," Rapp declared after his return from Jackson state penitentiary where he interrogated Fred Smith, Frank Oliver, and David Blackstone, the killers who are serving life terms at hard labor without any hope of parole or leniency.

MANY DEVELOPMENTS

Developments in Michigan's most hideous murder case today were five-fold:

1. Arrest of Otis Oden, negro blind-pig operator and landlord of Blackstone.

2. Orders from Sheriff Jacob Andres to increase the number of men who are dragging the Huron river for bodies of more victims of the "petting party" bandits.

3. Announcement by authorities that three drunken slayers allegedly participated in several other holdups of petting parties before they wantonly butchered and burned the four youngsters. Police would not elaborate on their statement.

4. Plans to confront Miss Katherine Keller, 25, heiress sweetheart of Smith, with statements from the three killers. Police declared that they will endeavor to connect her with many of the trio's holdups. They picture her as a "bandit queen."

5. New attempts to link Howard Forwalder, 24, friend of the convicted men, with holdups in the neighborhood. Forwalder also is held.

The "sex killers" of Vivian Gold, 15, Anna May Harrison, 17, Thomas Wheatley, 15, and Harry Lore, 16, will be held at Jackson until the investigation is complete. Then they are to be transferred to Marquette penitentiary. The slayers beat and shot the four youngsters to death, soaked their bodies in gasoline, and applied a torch. They had attacked the girls, they admitted, and the negro desecrated the body of one of the girls after she was dead.

GOVERNOR ANGERED

Governor Whittier Bricker, in a public address, said: "I would be the first one to help prevent a mob lynching of those murderers but I do not believe I would lift a finger to separate them from the electric chair if we had the supreme penalty in this state."

Harry Wheatley, father of one of the slain boys, said bitterly: "I wish the mob had got them. They don't deserve to live."

GASOLINE DISPUTE ENDS IN MURDER

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Disputing which should pay for a few gallons of gasoline, Burnette Lott, 25, a negro, today murdered his friend, Maxie Wexler, 23, according to police.

Wexler's throat was slashed from ear to ear. Lott, who had been living with him since he came to Chicago from New York a month ago, confessed the crime, police said.

SENATOR SHOT IN GIRL'S APARTMENT

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Roy T. Yates, 35-year-old financier and New Jersey senator, was so critically wounded today he was unable to give police his version of how he was shot. Yates was found wounded early Friday in the apartment of Miss Ruth Jayne, an attractive blonde of 27, who said she was the senator's "social secretary."

Miss Jayne, held on a charge of suspicion of felonious assault, failed to remove the mystery surrounding Yates' shooting although she was questioned for hours. She recalled little except that a sustained drinking party and a quarrel over finances had preceded the shooting.

Kiwanians will meet at the Pickaway Country Club Monday evening with the program not yet announced.

Youth Is Thrown Off Train, Hurt

Rowland Looney, 14, of McVeigh, Ky., son of Glen Looney of that place, is a patient in Berger hospital suffering injuries to his right leg and foot which may necessitate amputation. He was found along the Norfolk and Western tracks at Dorney at 3.45 p. m. Friday after having apparently failed to obtain footing on a passing freight train which he tried to board.

Looney was accompanied by three youths, Elmer, Sylvester and Russell Miller, who said they had been 'bumming' on freight trains in an effort to obtain work.

It is thought young Looney tried to jump on the train and missed his footing being thrown to the ground. Just how he received his injuries is not known. He was picked up at Dorney by an N. & W. employe and the Albough Co. ambulance was called. Young Looney was taken to Berger Hospital where Dr. D. V. Courtwright was called to attend him.

X-rays were to be taken Saturday to determine whether or not the limb must be amputated.

Relatives from Kentucky arrived Saturday in this city.

QUESTION MAN IN ARSON CASE

Earl Mason, Columbus, Identified as Being on Town-St; Makes Denial.

Earl Mason of Columbus, identified by Charles Bond, Town-st, as the man he saw walking near the residence of Peter Heeter, Town-st, shortly before a fire was discovered in the piano there at 6 a. m. Friday, is being held in the county jail where he is undergoing questioning. He was arrested Friday afternoon in the vicinity of the Winor Canning Co., by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell and Officer William McCrady.

Mason admitted being on that street early Friday but denies that he entered the Heeter home. He told arresting officers that he had been "sleeping out and walking around for exercise."

A "hobo" was questioned by Officer McCrady Friday morning, after being taken into custody near the N. & W. shops on Huston-st, but having an alibi was freed. The Heeter family has been the object of several acts in the past few weeks claimed by an attempt to destroy the house by fire early Friday and police are bending every effort to find the person responsible for the acts.

CUBAN REBELS ARE CAPTURED

Rebellion Thought Over When Leaders Are Placed On Gun-boat.

HAVANA, Aug. 15.—The backbone of Cuba's latest revolution appeared broken today as leaders of the insurrection which threatened the regime of President Gerardo Machado voluntarily capitulated to the chief executive in his temporary headquarters at Santa Clara following the capture of General Mario G. Menocal, former president and leader of the uprising.

Surrounded by his civil and military staff, President Machado received seventy leaders of the abortive insurrection and accepted their unconditional surrender. Government authorities expressed conviction that the last vestiges of armed opposition to the Machado regime would be dissipated within a few hours.

New Pet Found At Fire House

A new pet was being polished, oiled, treated, and petted at the fire house Saturday morning, when members of the department took a new animal to raise. An what an animal it is!

Fire Chief Talmer Wise took unto himself a new velocipede—Friday afternoon in the form of an 'Austin' car. Yes sir, and its first one owned in Circleville, and not only in Circleville but in Pickaway-co. The chief's mighty proud of his new perambulator and is showing it off to his many friends. It has been given a location in front of the big pumper truck in the engine house. Many would think this might delay the department in getting out to answer a fire call; but that is not the case. When a call comes, one of the firemen gives the automobile a kick and it is out the door in the street, ready for business.

Now the thing that is causing concern among firemen is, 'What shall it be called.'

One name that seems pretty appropriate as suggested by Fireman Clint Strawser is 'Honey Bunny Boo' but Chief Wise is not so certain that monicker would be appropriate. Anyway, anyone who can think of some nice name should get in touch with Talmer.

He says it'll go 55 miles an hour, too.

U. S. AVIATORS FINED $1,025

Herndon and Pangborn Dealt With Leniently By Japs For Violation.

TOKYO, Aug. 15.—Fines amounting to $1,025 each were imposed on Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn today by a Japanese court on charges of flying to Japan without permission and of taking photographs over fortified zones.

The court decided not to order confiscation of the Miss Vedol, the plane in which the American flyers flew to Tokyo after abandoning in Siberia their attempt to lower the round-the-world speed record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Each aviator was ordered to pay $1,000 for violating the aviation law in flying to this country without authorization. On the charge of violation of the stricter law regarding flights over fortified zones, only a nominal fine of $25 was imposed. Had the public procurator, who recommended the fines, decided to push this charge and sent the case to a higher court, a much more severe penalty might have been inflicted.

LINDBERGH'S ARRIVE IN BARREN SIBERIA

CORN CANNING STARTS HERE DURING WEEK

Rainy Weather Has Delayed Start of Pack, Factory-Men Assert

CROP LARGE ONE

400 to Be Given Work in County Shops

The sweet corn canning industry which annually furnishes employment to a number of Pickaway-co men and women will be in full swing throughout the county by next week, if weather permits, local packers state. The canning season would probably have been inaugurated earlier if it had not been for the rainfall.

Three local factories, including Winor's, Sears & Nichols' and the Esmeralda are expected to begin operations and the H. M. Crites factory at Ashville and another Sears & Nichols factory at Williamsport are also expected to begin canning corn next week.

Favorable weather conditions this year resulted in a good sweet corn yield locally and prospects of a pack slightly above the average and far better than in 1930 are exceedingly bright.

Many of the factories are antcipating a full run on corn and will be running capacity by the middle or before the end of next week. Local packers state that the corn canning season will continue through the latter part of September.

During the canning period this year approximately 400 men will be employed in the county's five factories.

Local factories have had a remarkable canning year as all crops have turned out excellent. The pea pack was very good and to all indications the lima bean crop will be excellent.

O. S. U. FACES MONEY CRISIS

Lean Year Expected at Institution; Increase in Pupils Is Seen.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—With its funds "dangerously low," Ohio State University faces a serious situation with regard to the operation of its physical plant between now and January 1.

The critical financial situation of the university was revealed here yesterday in a financial report made by Carl E. Steeb, business manager and secretary of the institution's board of trustees.

The matter, which it was made plain, demands immediate attention, will be laid before the state board of control at its meeting here next Monday. It was expected that some drastic plan of retrenchment would be attempted at the meeting.

Decreased legislative appropriations, intensified by an additional seven per cent reduction, ordered by the state department of finance, have been in a large part responsible for the present financial situation of the university. It was said.

Further gloom was added to the university's financial aspect with the prediction of an increased enrollment at the institution.

Several minor thefts with little loss incurred were reported to the police and sheriff's departments over the night.

Officer William McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong were investigating the theft Saturday of the Kibler Lime Plant, south of town, which was broken into early Saturday.

Bells and other such items out of the plant were reported taken. Entrance was gained by breaking the lock on a door.

Nelson Garner, Walnut-st, told police that some thief had stolen an inner tube and several other auto accessories from his car parked in front of his home.

The thefts were being investigated Saturday.

MILLIONS HOMELESS IN CHINESE FLOODS

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Approximately 50,000,000 Chinese have been rendered destitute by the floods inundating the Yangtze river valley, it was stated in a Shanghai dispatch to the London Times today.

The river is still rising, according to the central news, marooning hundreds of persons in tree-tops and on railway embankments, all face starvation unless aid arrives soon.

The Chinese government has formed a relief commission and steps are being taken to care for the millions whose homes were swept away by the flood. More than 1,000 refugees have arrived at Hankow.

SCHOOLEY PAROLED

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—Eluding an army of photographers and newspapermen that had assembled to herald his release, Liston C. Schooley, Jr., convicted of participation in the notorious Cleveland playground fraud scandal, left Ohio State penitentiary today on parole.

Schooley, intent upon avoiding publicity, pledged prison officials to secrecy and "pulled a fast one" on newspapermen who were impatiently waiting to interview him, by escaping unnoticed through a side dormitory door.

Newspapermen did not learn of Schooley's departure from the prison, from which he was granted a parole several weeks ago at the order of the state board of clemency, until some time later.

Reach Karagin After 1,067 Mile Flight Over Dangerous Bering Sea

RADIO COMMUNICATE

Speed of 100 Miles an Hour Averaged

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Conquerors of the treacherous Bering Sea, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were today safe at Karagin Island on the Northern coast of Siberia.

Their trim seaplane descended near the shores of Asia at 10:40 p. m., last night (Pacific Time) after a 1,067 mile hop from Nome, Alaska.

Throughout the perilous journey Mrs. Lindbergh was in communication with the naval radio station at St. Paul Island, in the middle of the Bering Sea.

A few minutes before their hop was over, Mrs. Lindbergh sent this message to the St. Paul station: "We are landing now. Reading in antenna. Will see you (communicate with you) nine Greenwich meridian time tomorrow."

FLYING FOG

Flying conditions on the hop across the Bering were not entirely favorable. Mrs. Lindbergh's messages frequently verified the reports of meteorologists that fogs were heavy over the sea.

However, Col. Lindbergh traveled at high altitude and thus evaded serious difficulties.

At Karagin Island the Lindberghs were to refuel and rest and then proceed to Tokyo in two or three easy stages.

The island itself is 80 miles long and at no place more than 30 miles wide. Situated there is the town of Karagin, sometimes called Kraginsk, the few native inhabitants of which occupy themselves mainly in fur trading.

The Lindberghs left Sakhalin, near Nome, at noon (Pacific Time) yesterday. Their flight to Karagin was accomplished at the approximate rate of 100 miles an hour. For 250 miles they flew above the open sea. Then, sighting Cape Navarin on the Siberian coast, at 5:40 p. m., the Tokyo-bound aviators headed south and proceeded over the barrens of Kamchatka. A region full of volcanic mountains.

At 7:30 o'clock last night Mrs. Lindbergh radioed the following to St. Paul Island:

"Believe us are passing Whiting Point, latitude 63.40 W. longitude 172.30 W., flying 3,500 feet altitude. Fog outer sea and along coast. Fair inland and above."

"Expect to arrive three hours unless wind changes. Departure depends upon refueling facilities. Plane now conducting tests with WOA, New York City."

Indications were that the flying Colonel and his radio operator-wife would be the objects of amusement to everyone where they landed.

Inhabitants of the Karagin Island and of the entire Kamchatka peninsula are a mixture of Russian and native. The Russians have introduced the cultivation of rice, potatoes, turnips, and other food-stuffs, while the natives largely confine themselves to reindeer herding, hunting and fishing.

Many of the natives live in huts of sod, or of shacks shaped like pyramids and perched on top of ten-foot stilts.

Completion of the Bering Sea hop means that "the worst is over" so far as the Lindberghs' trip to Japan is concerned. It is believed that the travels ahead of them are much less fraught with danger than several of the hops they have already made.

TOO TIRED TO GO TO CHURCH

Bishop Huston has said, "Too tired to go to church? That's sheer nonsense. There isn't a place in the continent so restful as the church. You are going to lie around the house all day. loll in an easy chair, go to sleep over a book. Tell yourself honestly—did you ever see a loafer who didn't look tired all the time?"

"You have no need to loaf all day. An hour in church, an hour of quiet, the uplift which comes from the new channels into which your thoughts are led will rest you more physically, morally intellectually than all the day spent in trying to rest."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson
Sowing and Reaping. (The Quarter's Temperance Lesson) Galatians 6:1-10 for Sunday, Aug. 16.

V. 1. "Brethren, even if a man be overtaken in any trespass, ye who are spiritual, restore such a one in a spirit of gentleness, looking to thyself lest thou also be tempted." This is an epistle of brotherhood in which Paul condemns the spirit of division, strife, pride and envy, he makes no place for fault-finding; he allows a place for surprises of evil which may overtake all; to rescue a fallen brother is a mark of character; the spirit of gentleness in rescue work is more effective than stern proof that God does not permit himself to be mocked. Here is taught the principle of life's success or failure; seed thought of crime may be produced and make a criminal; a seed thought of righteousness will produce a man of justice; a taste for liquor satisfied may produce a drunkard; an appreciation of music gratified will produce a musician; here is the place where it is necessary to provide the right schools, the best books, the finest associates for children and youth. The future depends upon the seed sown in the minds of children.

V. 8. "For he that soweth unto his own flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, but he that soweth unto the spirit shall reap eternal life." One will make the physical life dominant if most attention is given to the spiritual.

V. 9. "Let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Perseverance and patience will gain the golden cup is the motto of a fisherman friend.

V. 10. "So then, as we have opportunity, let us work that which is good toward all men and especially toward them that are of the household of faith." The good toward all men is the communicating of the Christian spirit and faith. As we meet others we leave a spiritual deposit for good or bad determined by the natural outflow of our inner life.

Official announcement of the consummation of the Congregational and Christian churches was made at the recent biennial convention in Seattle. The denomination will hereafter be known as the Congregational-Christian church. It was decided to hold the next convention in Cleveland in 1933.

A study just completed by the Cumulative Digest of International Law and Relations, published as one of the bulletins of the Graduate School of the American University, Washington, D. C., shows a total of 7809 American missionaries now stationed in 87 foreign countries. Nearly one half of this total or 3,712 missionaries are located in the three great countries of China, India and Japan. The figure for China is 1,346; India 1,351 and Japan 515.

HOW CAN THE AVERAGE SUNDAY SCHOOL OF TODAY BE IMPROVED?

Dr. Henry E. Tralle of New York has said in relation to this problem "Many of our church schools still are too noisy. The various groups are not sufficiently separated one from the others. It is difficult for the leaders to gain and hold attention and to secure order and interest and spiritual results. There is needed as a part of the whole church structure a building or standard schoolhouse construction, with plastered partitions and single hinged doors. Such equipment can be secured where there is any sort of adequate leadership. Many of our schools too are still using the uniform lessons which are out of date. There are provided today an abundance of lesson materials for pupils of all ages that will make possible far better results than can be obtained with the old arrangement of lessons. Moreover, the school is a thing apart in itself. It should be the church itself going to school and learning how to live and to do and to dare. The whole church ought to be considered a school and conducted as such. The general answer to this question is leadership training. Our church school leaders must be trained in schools, through reading and discussion."

HOME EDUCATION SLEEPING OVER IT
A little boy was crying up in the nursery and his father coming home wearied was irritable and annoyed. "What is the matter with that child, anyway?" he said testily. "I have a good mind to go up and give him a good spanking!"

There was no angry retort on the part of his wife, but, taking in the situation, the young mother slipped quietly out of the room and with a gentle voice and tender hand soon had the little lad asleep. Then she gave her attention to the same tactful manner to the bigger boy downstairs, who was not only the little lad's father, but also had the little son's temperament and disposition, which as easily expressed itself when weariness set in.

In the morning father and son were happy and cheerful and started.

Cards' Manager Quiet On Series

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Boasting a lead of nine and one half games, the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals rode into the Polo Grounds today for a four-game series with the second-place Giants no more "crucial" than a prize fight between Tom Heeey and Johnny Rizzo.

But to Gabby Street, manager of the Cards, the four-game set is of paramount importance.

Voicing the general opinion that the Cards and Athletics were practically "in," the writer asked Street last evening for his slant on the coming world series.

"I'm not breathing a word about the world series until we actually have the pennant lashed to the mast," replied the ultra-conservative Gabby. "I've seen too many clubs fall to pieces after leading the league in August. Tell you more about it after we finish this series with the Giants."

"Do you figure the A's will be easier to beat than last year?" asked the writer.

"I'm tickled to death at Jim Bottomley's come-back," answered Gabby. "I always figured he was the best first baseman in the league."

"Will Hallahan pitch the first game against the A's?"

"There's seven other clubs to beat in this league," continued the sergeant. "They're all tough, the Phillies are tough; so are the Braves. Cincinnati is tough and Pittsburgh has a mighty tough club."

The writer, also finding the going tough, ventured:

"Most people figure Haines and Hallahan will be your best bets against the Athletics."

"The biggest factors in our success have been our reserve strength and our pitchers." Street went on, "we've got a 25-man ball club out there. The boys on the bench are every bit as good as the ones on the field."

The writer pointed out that the Cards will get a break this year in that the world series will start in St. Louis.

"Rhem has lost a lot of tough games lately," pointed out the Sarge. "He's just been unlucky, he should have won fifteen games by now."

"Are you going to use Collins in the world series?" interrupted the interviewer, becoming desperate.

"You can say for me without any qualifications," concluded Gabby as he edged toward the dining room. "That Derringer is positively the best pitching find in the big leagues this season."

SUGGEST END OF 'REC' SKED

Would Have Title Series Played, Then Out-of-town Games With All-Stars

With the second half championship of the city's recreation ball league about sewed up by the Independent Grocers, it has been suggested by several persons that the remainder of the league schedule, covering three weeks play, be disposed of and the title series between the Circleville Oils and Independent Grocers started for the city championship.

Waning interest has been given for this suggestion.

The plan as advanced to The Herald is that the managers meet and set the number of games to be played; the umpires to handle the contests and any other rules necessary for the play-off. Another thing which will be of vital importance is the collections to be taken up during the series. Many persons have proven very faithful to the league and have been willing to drop in their 10 cents or 25 cents, some at every game, but there are many more who could afford to contribute a dime or quarter who never reach into their pocket when the bat is passed.

The recreation league has been a success and it is thought a banquet at the end of the playing season would be a fitting thing for all league players and officials. Contributions in the remaining games are necessary to make this possible.

Then after the title series has been played, the managers of the league should get together again to name an all-star team. Then, it is suggested that this team play a number of games with out of town teams in order to swell the purse of the league to aid in providing a banquet. Good teams from Columbus, Chillicothe, Washington C. H. and Lancaster are available which should draw crowds.

Whether the managers should care to take any action on these things as suggested is to be seen, but in the face of circumstances it appears as though they would be advantageous.

Grosskloss 'Buc' Rookie, Working Way To Doctor

By LOU MILLER

PITTSBURGH.—The rise of young Howard Grosskloss, who has commanded attention throughout the National League circuit for his sensational hitting and fielding after stepping in "green" at the second-base post for the Pirates, may seem astonishing to some folks. But is has caused no great surprise to Pittsburghers familiar with his past performances in the athletic world.

Howard had a splendid record in other sports as well as in baseball while in high school in the very home town of the Buccaneers. Yanked from Amherst College without any minor league experience—or much professional diamond experience any kind for that matter—and placed down at the second sack for the Pirates, Grosskloss has been doing things. Many scribes are inclined to place him up close to the top among the leading second-sackers. Not only did he fill a gap in the Pirate ranks, but the likable, modest home-town lad has actually injected fresh interest locally in the fate of the Pirates.

He has a faculty of leadership. It has been the one quality to insure the youth's self-confidence and explains how he was able to fit right into highly competitive big league play from the start and make good. Throughout his brief athletic career, Grosskloss has dominated the scene where he appeared.

In 1921 and 1922, Howard, diminutive in size, captained the Riverside High School basketball, baseball and soccer teams. The team had no coach, but it made a good showing mainly through Grosskloss' efforts. In 1923, the high school became Langely High and a coach, Fred A. Bode, became the mentor. Grosskloss, with this incentive, improved rapidly—in all sports.

His all around ability enabled him to participate in football, baseball, basketball, soccer, volleyball, tennis, track and swimming.

OUTSIDER IN BIG VICTORY

Calumet Butler at Five To One Trots to Hambletonian Stake Win.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Calumet Butler, a five to one outsider, today held the banner event of the trotting world and the rich Hambletonian stakes, under a clever drive by Dick McMahon, 62-year-old horseman, the Kentucky-owned colt beat Keno, second choice in the betting, in the hot stake here yesterday.

A crowd of more than 10,000 saw the veteran driver urge over Calumet Butler by less than half a head in a dramatic third heat. W. H. Cane's Nodda Guy, the favorite, ran fifth in the first heat finished second in the second and then was withdrawn when she went lame.

Keno, owned by John M. Berry of Rome, Ga., won the first heat and Calumet Butler took the second heat easily winning the event in the third clash by just overcoming the Georgia horse's despot.

The prize money for the Hambletonian was divided as follows: first Calumet Butler, $31,549.97; Keno, second, $9,914.28; Calumet Belmont, third, $4,957.14. The other three colts, Chicago Hanover, Nodda Guy and Nodda Guy, shared the fourth place.

GROCCERS WIN FROM OILS

Purcell Does Well For Four Innings But Weakens When Support Fails.

Following a hit and run battle at Utilities' field Friday evening the Grocers proved victors over the Circleville Oils and won the postponed ball game by the score of 10-6. Even though the Oils collected one more hit than the Grocers, they were checked with nine errors which lost the ball game.

Both teams failed to score until the fifth when each collected a run. The Grocers scored every inning after. The Oils scored five runs in the fifth and seventh to make the score 7-6 at the beginning of the eighth. The Grocers scored their last three runs in the last of the eighth on several clean drives and a couple of errors in the infield. The Oils men lost a chance to overcome the score in the eighth when they had a man on second and third.

Purcell and Watson, hurlers for the Oils and Grocers respectively, pitched good ball.

Future American
Eminent anthropologists have produced the answer to the principal worry of that stangest species of pessimist who is constantly distressed by the thought that future generations of Americans will be weaklings, physically mentally, because living generations do not fight Indians, chop down trees and live in log cabins.
The latest anthropological guess as to what the American of the future will look like is that he will be a tall, ruddy-faced, sandy-haired and well-built individual, rather than the familiar lean, lanky, hatchet-faced figure of "Uncle Sam." He will be a wholesome and effective type, showing improvement in physique and intellect.

This is reassuring news if true. While it means little to this generation what sort of people will be living here a century hence, any race or nation takes a certain amount of pride in its own past and future, as well as in the present, and is disturbed by any marked trend away from the true characteristics.
It is possible to draw a fairly accurate picture of future generations if foreign elements are not being introduced, through immigration, fast enough to change the strain or if national life is not likely to undergo revolutionary changes in the meantime. In the case of the United States immigration has been reduced to an impotent minimum and radical changes in national life are highly improbable in the next hundred years.

Appeal to Veterans
WORLD war veterans are also citizens. They have performed a military duty and have a civic duty to perform. They are present or potential recipients of government aid through hospitalization, compensation, loans or pensions, but they are also taxpayers, giving to the government as well as receiving from it.

These facts Chairman Johnson, of the house committee on world war veterans' legislation, had in mind when he pleaded with the Iowa American Legion to go slow in further moves for government largess. His appeal was to the patriotism of his hearers. His aim was to show that civic as well as military ardor is a virtue.

There is no question of the obligation of the government to its soldiers. But it also has obligations to them as citizens and taxpayers.
Wherein does the able-bodied war veteran gain if the government saddles him with unbearable taxes and smother his business with taxes that it may appear grateful to the ex-soldier? The veterans can have pensions and many more gratuities but only at the risk of denying themselves more worthwhile gains by applying the brake of excessive taxation to the wheels of business.

If the American Legion contemplates another advance on the federal treasury, it may well pause a moment to consider whether it is acting in the best interests of the veteran.

What! No Desert?
A NOTHER heinous crime chargeable to the flickering films, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California, is the particularly vicious offense of leading the American public into the false notion that the transcontinental motorist crosses great deserts like those pictures in the movies where a breakdown may mean a terrible death from thirst.

Perhaps the tourist from "How East" pictures thousands of miles of sandy wastes dotted only with the bleached bones of men and beasts, and thinks of the terrible fate of those fortune-seekers who never reached the other side. Of such romantic and adventurous stuff is the desert of the films made, but the real thing is a tourists' best friend.

The world's most desert is not any of the established routes is a drive of 240 miles through parched sands, past ghostly skeletons, but even paved roads and between two lines of gas stations and hot-dog stands. That is the best desert adventure the Santa Fe Trail affords. By other routes the desert stretches are long enough to satisfy the tourist's taste for this mild

Travers Lorrimer, son of the wealthy Margaret Lorrimer, broods constantly for Delight Hartford, whom he claims to have married in England during the war. No trace can be found of the girl, and when Travers mistakes Mary Lou Thurston, pretty young orphan, for Delight, Mrs. Lorrimer induces Mary Lou to play the part. Travers is told he must win "Delight" all over again. In the months that follow, Travers is more attracted to "Delight" than ever. Mary Lou loves Travers and feels she cannot keep up the masquerade. Just as the crisis is reached, Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's newspaper reporter friend, locates the real Delight acting in a revue. Mary Lou is stunned by the news. Mrs. Lorrimer comforts Mary Lou and plans to investigate.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.
SHE was efficient, executive, not, it seemed, at all perturbed. Or if she were, she did not show it.

She drew Mary Lou close to her, kissed the cold, small mouth. "Try to sleep," she repeated.

But at her touch Mary Lou's tears came again, fell on the other woman's face, and then, as the girl bowed her head on her hands, "It's just..." she sobbed, trying to control herself. "I can't bear..." when he finds out... the part I played... all the lies... and to leave you..." said Mary Lou incoherently.

"You won't leave me. We'll muddle through this somehow. There may be another girl of that name."

"No, she said she knew him—" "I know. Go to bed, darling. I'll leave it in my hands."

A Future at Stake

After Mary Lou had left her Margaret Lorrimer lay in the darkness and thought.

She didn't like the sound of this interloper.

But it had to be faced. She had to find out if Travers and this woman had been married. If they had, perhaps she could be bought off and Travers need never know. Yet as far as Mary Lou was concerned that was no solution. She sighed and turned restlessly on her pillows. Her arm began to ache furiously. She'd have to get some sleep and be fit to see Dan and Larry in the morning. But before anything was done, anything settled, she would see this woman for herself.

If she had not known before as a certainty that Mary Lou was in love with Lorrimer, she knew it now. And now, more than ever, it complicated things for them all.

In the morning Mrs. Lorrimer sent for Dr. Mathews. Later, he and Larry Mitchell had a long talk. Then he came to Margaret.

"The boy's right. We will say nothing to Travers until this business is definitely settled. Until we are sure. And, Margaret, don't worry," he urged.

"Wouldn't you worry? When Travers' whole future is at stake, his happiness... his health..."

"He's in excellent condition, thanks to... Mary Lou," the doctor reminded her.

"Yes, thanks to her. But what is to happen to her? And to him, when he knows the truth? Oh,

"You and I are going to the opening night of the revue," she told him. "Larry is to get us tickets. He's getting up some sort of an affair at the Wynnes' that night, so that Travers won't wonder why he and Mary Lou aren't included in our party."

"I see," Mathews smiled. "And Larry's press agent job?"

Mrs. Lorrimer tried to laugh. "He says that the opening night is up to the critics, not the press agents. Dan, I can't wait to see her, to make sure, and—" She stopped. "Dan, how much is he going to hate us?" she asked.

In her talk with Larry Mitchell, Mrs. Lorrimer applauded his wisdom in coming to her—and Mary Lou—with his news before doing anything else.

"I want to see this girl for myself," she told him, "and then I'll decide what to do. The question is how much claim has she? I have never believed," she went on, "that Travers married her. It doesn't seem possible that no record has been kept of the marriage; even war times weren't as lax as that. Just what kind of a person is she, Larry?"

"She's pretty hard, of course. She has had bad times, one can see that. But somehow I feel she's a good sort. If she had a legitimate claim, however, I can't imagine her not pressing it. By all practical standards she'd be a fool not to. And she's far from being a fool. Your position—" he floundered and stopped, a little red.

"You mean, money?" Mrs. Lorrimer laughed. "I see. Yes, that's just what I thought, too. Well, I'll go to the first night of the revue and see her for myself. Larry, it's all a dreadful sort of muddle, yet I suppose it is better than uncertainty as to whether she was dead or alive," she added, "at least we have something concrete to face. Even if we find, as I believe and hope, that she is not Travers' wife, there are still complications."

"Such as?" inquired Larry.

"Travers himself. If there was no marriage—and if there were not why does he insist upon it? There must at least have been some understanding, some relationship. I know my son. He would never repudiate a promise or an obligation," she said, her great eyes gravely fixed on Larry's, and her delicate, nobly featured face quivering a little.

Not Transferable

"I can imagine what she was like ten years or more ago," Larry told her. "Very like, in some ways, Mary Lou. In other, not at all. Mrs. Lorrimer, please don't think me officious or impertinent, but it's Mary Lou that Travers cares for now. Not this strange woman. What's going to happen to him when he finds out? He can't just transfer his affections, can he? I mean this memory he loved, that on flesh and blood, became Mary Lou, and when he learns—"

He stopped again. Mrs. Lorrimer tried to smile. "I'm tired," she murmured. "That's what I am afraid of. When he learns the truth, Oh, we were forced into this whole affair by circumstances, by the coincidence of a resemblance. We went into it recklessly, meeting each situation as it arose and not looking ahead. I'm frightened," she told Larry, as she had told Dr. Mathews.

"I wish to heaven I'd never found her," Larry said sincerely, "for that I had the nerve to keep quiet about it."

The Right Course.
"No, better this way," she reassured him. "At least one mystery will be cleared up for us. This other situation couldn't have gone on indefinitely. Travers hasn't pressed any claim he believed he had on... Mary Lou. He offered her, some time ago, an annulment of the alleged marriage if she found she couldn't come to care for him. Well, that indefinite position couldn't go on forever, of course. Eventually he would have to know the truth and we would be no nearer to knowing the real facts than we were. Don't worry, Larry. You did the right thing. Somehow it will all clear up," she said.

"I hope so—for all our sakes. But forgive me, Mrs. Lorrimer, it is not so much of Travers I'm thinking, nor of you even, as of Mary Lou."

"I'm thinking of her, too," said Mrs. Lorrimer, and the brown eyes were misty.

On the opening night of the revue Jenny Wynne, prompted by Larry, though unconscious of his underlying motive, gave a small informal and entirely jolly party at her house for the avowed purpose of announcing their engagement. What the manager of the revue thought of the absence of his press agent—who so had been quite satisfactory so far—Larry neither knew nor cared. He'd sold another sketch. Jenny loved him. His friends were more important to him than a temporary job, and there were other jobs. Besides, the columnist on the Daily Screen had promised to haunt lobby and backstage and pick up any items of press agent interest he could find for Larry and pass them on to that casual young man of the Fourth Estate.

Lorrimer had rather demurred at the party. So far he hadn't had to go where there were "crowds" of people.

"But there won't be 'crowds,'" Mary Lou assured him, concealing her nervousness beneath a mask of bright gaiety, "and we do owe it to Larry and Jenny. After all, we are responsible," she rallied on.

"I wish on," Lorrimer told her, suddenly giving in, "that we were as good at matchmaking for others as we are for ourselves. After all, matchmaking begins at home."

He smiled to see her flush, touched her hand fleetingly and heard her draw a sharp breath—aware that it was sheer pain.

"Let's go," he said, thinking that, after all, this girl of his was young and gay-hearted and needed youth and gaiety about her. "I'm pretty much of a streak," he told her, "and terrible selfish, keeping you all to myself."

"You are not!" she said, impulsively, hotly, and he was more than content.

Eight other counties, all containing or being near to large cities, had 25 per cent or more growth in their rural population. These counties together with the cities which affect them are Butler (Cincinnati), Cuyahoga (Cleveland), Franklin (Columbus), Mahoning (Youngstown), Montgomery (Dayton), Scioto (Portsmouth), Stark (Canton) and Trumbull (Warren and Youngstown).

Oxygen As a Medicine Has Saved Many Lives

Modern Physicians Use This Vital Element to Combat Disease and Death—Dr. Copeland Tells Some Facts About It and Its Part in the Sustenance of Life

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

OXYGEN is a gas found in the air. It is one of the elements vital to the sustenance of life.

In larger and purer doses than we get in ordinary breathing, oxygen is used as a curative agent in certain diseases.

The value of this gas was greatly appreciated during the World War in the treatment of gas poisoning. In addition, the gas is employed in certain cases of pneumonia.

Following the discovery that this gas is important in combating disease, its uses have been many. Oxygen is now prescribed for various diseases and many lives have been saved by its vitalizing effects.

Of giving more oxygen will benefit the patient.
The old-time and tragic effects of diphtheria are rarely seen in this generation due to one of the modern methods of guarding against this dread disease we seldom see it.
In a severe attack of diphtheria, the windpipe of the struggling child becomes partially closed. As a result, the body suffers from the lack of oxygen. In such cases the administration of oxygen has carried many a sufferer through the crisis of the disease.
Respiration from the evil effects of exposure to illuminating gas or from immersion in water, has been made possible by giving oxygen. In these cases it has saved many lives.
A very important use of oxygen has been in relieving infants at birth. Tiny infants born blue, with great difficulty in breathing, have given the attendant's many anxious moments. If not properly handled, such babies die because of their inability to breathe. In these cases oxygen has been administered in its pure form to the use of the gas in relieving the infant's distress for the valuable gas. As time goes on, scientific discoveries and more methods of combating disease and death, we have progressed tremendously since the days when one of the most important elements depended on "herbs" and "herbs" for relief.

Following the discovery that this gas is important in combating disease, its uses have been many. Oxygen is now prescribed for various diseases and many lives have been saved by its vitalizing effects.

Without An Entry Nation Is Highly Interested In Course Of Schneider Cup least two official American observers will check speeds when the wings of the racing world flash around the pylons in the Schneider cup air races at Calshot, England, September 12, International News Service learned today.

This country has no entry in the international speed event, but is carefully watching for results. Reports that both France and England have planes expected to attain speeds about the 400-mile-an-hour mark have centered keen attention on the tests.

The navy plans to send an official observer to the races and the national advisory committee for aeronautics and the National Aeronautical Association jointly have appointed John J. Ide to attend. Besides these official observers, American Aeronautical manufacturers, almost en masse, plan to send aviation experts to the races.

Officials in the army, navy and commerce department aeronautical division declared they were not so much interested in the maximum speeds attained as in the design trends of the new products of the world's aeronautical speed engineers. They pointed out the racers would contribute to aviation most in streamline and control engineering.

The Schneider race will offer an interesting comparison with the national air races to be held in Cleveland the latter part of this month, but, in the eyes of experts, will reflect no discredit on American aviation if speeds attained at Calshot are higher than the maximum at Cleveland.

"It will be interesting to check the results of the two meets," Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, observed, "but we must remember that England and the other countries in the Schneider races are shooting for speed alone, almost, England fighting to win for the third time the Schneider cup, which will make it permanently hers.

"In this country, and at the Cleveland races, the planes will be designed for durability, performance, and safety as well as speed. Continued striving for an ideal combination of these qualities will in the end turn out a much more valuable type of ship than will strictly speed races. Of course, we will learn some lessons from the Schneider races, and we are watching them with interest. But we will not be too concerned if the speeds there are higher than those of the Cleveland races.

"The ships which the Schneider cup racers will put in the air would not stand up for a minute against a first class machine built for fighting, maneuvering, and common-sense distance flying. They cannot carry enough fuel to be of any military value."

BELIEVE BURNED MAN IS MURDERED
NEW CASTLE, Pa.—Believed a possible murder victim, an unidentified man was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of Lewis Pagley here.

The charred body of the victim was found soon after the fire had razed the dwelling.

Dominick Pagley first identified the body as that of his uncle, Lewis, but the latter appeared a short time later and said he knew nothing of the fire or the identity of the man who had been burned.

Coroner Caldwell, together with city and state authorities, immediately started an investigation seeking to establish cause of the blaze and identity of the victim.

Lewis Pagley, owner of the home is at present in Italy. During his absence, the home was occupied by Henry Pagley, a relative.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

Sowing and Reaping, Galatians 6:1-10 for Sunday, August 16.
1. How overcome the disposition to be fault-finders?
2. What are some of the burdens of others which we ought to help bear?
3. What are some of the burdens that no one but ourselves ought to bear?
4. How can a man deceive himself?
5. What is character? How is it built?
6. What is foolhardy in the saying, "I'm willing to try anything once?"
7. What is meant by "sowing to the flesh" and "sowing to the spirit?"
Clericus says, "Our life is a sowing in which all our myriad thoughts and actions are living seeds, which are either golden grains of truth and righteousness, self-control and good character or blackened seeds of sin, and we select and scatter these seeds by our own choice and hand."
Lesson Prayer, "We thank thee Father for noble seed thoughts which may be ours and which will bring forth an abundant harvest expressed in right conduct and character."

Man in Possession
The screen's newest star is here in a grand comedy, successor to his initial triumph, "Shipmates." It's a real delight!
Tonight—"Big Business Girl."

FOR YOUR INSPECTION
THE MERCHANT and manufacturer who advertise, actually are placing their merchandise before you for inspection. They invite your most critical attention and an uncompromising comparison. And their advertisements, so to speak, say to their products: "We have introduced you to the public—now stand on your merits."
If the manufacturer and merchant did not have confidence in their wares, they would hesitate to call attention to them. For advertising rigidly tests the maker, the seller and the merchandise. Business so tested, and found not wanting, is prosperous.
In the long run, you can depend on the man who advertises, as well as on his product. That is one reason why people have found that it pays to read advertisements.
It is through advertising that the excellent things of the world are brought to the attention of those who are seeking for the best and most economical way to spend their money.
Read the advertisements. They are news.
